Dear Deutsche Bank,

Thank you for considering me for the dbAchieve program in the Fixed Income & Currencies Division.

After the privilege of meeting Mariclare McEntire at on campus recruitment event, I learned about her role as an associate in CLO Syndicate for the Fixed Income & Currencies Division and instantly took great interest in Deutsche Bank's diverse culture and specifically the dbAchieve program.

I am currently a Carolina Finance Scholar and sophomore in the University of South Carolina's Darla Moore School of Business with a 3.9 GPA majoring in Finance and Risk Management & Insurance with a Sustainability in Business Concentration.

I chose the Darla Moore School of Business for the incredible opportunities offered by both students and faculty alike. From my first day in the Darla Moore School of business, I aspired to join organizations that would help me grow professionally and personally. To this end, I joined the Carolina Finance and Investment Association which aims to immerse its members in the different roles of Finance. After being intrigued by a number of career paths laid out in front of me, I knew I wanted to pursue a career in high finance. Ultimately, my greatest interest was and is in Fixed Income and Currency Roles. This was reinforced for me when upon the suggestion of some of my peers, I completed the Bloomberg Market Concepts course where I was introduced to FX reserves and the concepts of currency pegging, as well as other underlying economic drivers.

In speaking with Mariclare, she emphasized the diverse and inclusive culture that inspired her to join the Deutsche Bank team. After learning of the success of Deutsche Bank's diversity initiatives and how they are an intricate part of the dbAchieve culture as well, I was left at ease knowing that if I were awarded an internship opportunity, not only would I be able to grow professionally, but personally as well by being a part of a diverse team where differences are embraced and seen as a constructive and powerful force for growth.

I would be honored to be on your team providing clients with financial solutions through multiple types of cash and derivative products in diverse markets and geographical regions and to have the opportunity to begin my career in high finance at Deutsche Bank through the dbAchieve program.

Sincerely,

Leo Goldberg
