

Dear KPMG,

My name is Leo Goldberg, and I am a sophomore at the University of South Carolina pursuing my Bachelor of Science in Finance and Risk Management. Recently, I was accepted into my school's Carolina Finance Scholars Program which aims to prepare admitted students for a top finance career through an advanced curriculum utilizing case-based coursework. Students in the program are assigned with weekly, rigorous group projects that help develop real world technical financial skills. During my completion of these projects, I have developed proficiencies in Excel and PowerPoint enabling me to create and present pro-forma income statements, balance sheets, statements of cash flows, as well as other types of financial analyses and forecasts. My continuous involvement in challenging group projects has taught me how to be a team player that values others' inputs while simultaneously contributing my own. Whether it be through my participation in the Carolina Finance Scholars Program, Carolina Fund Investment Club, or the Gamecock Consulting Club, I constantly challenge myself to continue to improve my technical knowledge as well as my social ability to integrate into new organizations with the goal of contributing and improving them. At KPMG, I know I would be a great candidate because of my proficiencies in financial analysis, and Microsoft Suite. Moreover, my willingness to learn and my ability to work well with others will guarantee that no matter what team I am a part of, or what project I am assigned, I will be a valuable and approachable teammate that helps contribute to the highest quality of work that KPMG has proudly embodied for nearly four decades.

Best,

Leo