Goldman Sachs

New Analyst Program – Global Banking & Markets (FICC and Equities)

Dear Hiring Committee,

I am applying for the New Analyst Program within Global Banking & Markets (FICC and Equities) at Goldman Sachs. I am a rising senior at the Darla Moore School of Business, University of South Carolina, majoring in Finance and Risk Management with a 3.9 GPA. I recently completed a Global Markets Sales summer analyst internship at BNP Paribas, where I rotated between Macro and Equity business lines and gained hands-on exposure to structured notes, FX, and rates. The experience confirmed my interest in markets and in working with clients to design thoughtful, risk-aware solutions.

During my internship, I spent significant time on the Structured Notes desk, where I helped design and pitch a defined volatility index-linked autocallable note. I built performance simulations using historical and backtested data and created client materials that explained payoff mechanics in clear terms. I also contributed to macro strategy work by delivering a product pitch advocating a long USD/JPY view, grounded in rate differentials, positioning data, and economic releases. This required daily use of Bloomberg to track rates, FX, and volatility, and to support trade views with data. These experiences strengthened my ability to evaluate market moves, think through risk and convexity, and communicate client outcomes with clarity.

Previously, at Forte Capital Group, I worked directly with high-net-worth clients on outreach, meeting materials, and portfolio modeling. That exposure emphasized the importance of suitability and tailoring product features to client objectives. On campus, I am a member of the Carolina Finance Scholars Program, where I focus on valuation, capital markets, and risk. As a Group Head in the Carolina Fund, I guide valuation work and coach newer members on presenting investment views with confidence and humility. I have also completed the SIE and Bloomberg Market Concepts and am comfortable using Excel, Bloomberg, and R for analytics and scenario modeling.

I am drawn to Goldman Sachs for the scale of its markets platform, its collaborative culture, and its reputation for training analysts to excel in client-facing roles. I want to contribute to a team where I can continue developing both technically and professionally, while helping clients manage risk and capture opportunity across asset classes. I believe that my internship and leadership experiences, combined with my strong academic foundation and willingness to keep learning, make me a strong fit for the program.

Thank you for your consideration. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background and experiences align with the New Analyst Program.

Sincerely,

Leo Goldberg
